Future Plans:

“How far down the Rabbit hole are you willing to go?”

What I envision is a group with an identity, name, purpose, mission, vision and goals that is willing to address this particular question and a number of possible others. I feel that this group can have a unique identity and calling. One that has understood the film as a challenge – a call to action on a personal and group level. Remember, one of the points in the film is that when people coalesce, when they are able to truly come together, their individual “power” (which the movie claims is already prodigious!) CAN be greatly amplified, partially depending on the intentions, will, consciousness, and many other factors of the group. How powerful can these effects be? The movie challenges us to ask that question and then to seek an answer – not just ask the question! It also challenges us (if you take it) by daring us to “show that this stuff works.” What better way to do that than by forming a group that develops, demonstrates, and lives by those principles.

I am personally willing to commit time and effort to such a group but it will not sustain itself by the actions of one individual. Others will need to adopt the vision established for the group and be willing to commit their time and effort if the group will be viable and self-sustain. Many of us have been doing this for some time but in relative isolation. Is there a purpose and a good reason to coalesce?

The movie is in a sense discussing aspects of personal empowerment – perhaps a whole new view of what this means. It is trying to “lay out the territory” of what, why and how we are what we are – its claim is that we are divine human spirits (to what extent are we God also?) in embodied physical form – what does that mean? What is our relationship with the divine? It is talking about the connection/relationship between our 4D material reality and Spirit, about the connection between science (“this world”) and Spirit (other worlds). It is asking “What is that connection all about and what are the ramifications for each of us individually and collectively?” What is true spiritual evolvment?

Who created-creates us?! To what extent can we re-create ourselves? Are there ground rules for self-recreation? What are they? How can/do we use them? To what extent are we self-creations? To what extent are we co-partners and co-creators with the Divine?

I believe one very definite and direct purpose of the film is to “throw down the gauntlet” to you and me. To challenge us to explore these questions actively: is this information ‘correct’/accurate? What makes it so? And if so it is asking us, can it be practically used and howso? Also, what does this mean for us on a personal level? Can it and HOW can it change lives in a real way? Can people be transformed by the information or by information derived from the info in the film and to what extent? How might that happen? Can the world be so transformed – is that possible? If so, how do we do that? Should we? Why? Is it up to us – and to what extent is it?

What does all this say about the present human condition – which looks dismal in many respects. What does it say about human dis-ease and suffering? Is the Divine-human spirit a powerful one for healing? How and to what extent? Are there viable solutions for these conditions which derive from the info in the film? What are they and which ones work best? Do all paths lead to “home” and are they all equal? What info and methods seem reasonable and which not? Does the info in the film give us any clues on how to decide? Understanding the relationships between religion and spirituality.

Important Questions to ponder/discuss:

1. Do you see the need for this group to be maintained/formed? What do you think that need is?
2. Would you be interested in being involved in a group and to what extent? Consider being a member, etc.
3. What would be the vision and/or mission of the group?
4. What would be the uniqueness of the group?
5. What combination of spirituality, religion, science would there be in terms of areas to explore?
6. How would the group sustain itself?
7. What would you like to get out of it?
8. What would you like the group to try to accomplish? To stand for?
9. How would you see it tied in to the film? What level?
10. What sorts of things would you like to see the group do – Hold meetings? Of what kind? Bring in speakers? Explore practical aspects of prayer, healing, spiritual evolvment, provide information for living?
11. Interested in forming subgroups or committees?
12. Hook up with other groups?

Please consider these questions and feel free to contact me with your thoughts, ideas, and suggestions – thanks!
